

My Expedia Coupon Terms and Conditions

You have received a coupon for travel reservations through Expedia.com titled "My Expedia Coupon" ("MEC") as part of the settlement of In re Expedia Hotel Taxes and Fees Litigation, Case No. 05-2-02060-1 SEA (Superior Court of Washington in and for King County). The MEC from Expedia.com® is only available to settling class members of the above named class action lawsuit. The MEC, which is denominated in U.S. currency, is valid for use towards a new booking on www.expedia.com of rooms at an Expedia® Special Rate ("ESR") hotel and package reservations that include an ESR hotel reservation plus airline tickets and/or a rental car ("Qualifying Reservation"). The MEC must be used by July 31, 2011. All travel using a MEC must be completed by January 31, 2012. An MEC is non-transferable. Coupon cash value 1/100¢. Any MEC is void where prohibited by law.

Bookings made using an MEC are subject to availability at the time of booking and all applicable terms and conditions. Qualifying Reservations made using an MEC are, except as specified in these Terms and Conditions, subject to the same terms, conditions, and restrictions as purchases made using other means of payment, including as set forth in the www.expedia.com Terms of Use. The MEC terms and conditions are as written herein and cannot be changed by any representation of any unauthorized person, including employees of Expedia, Inc.

How to redeem: On or before June 15, 2010, the MEC will be directly deposited in each qualifying class member's Expedia.com user account. An email notification will be sent to the email address associated with each Expedia.com user account when the MEC is ready to use. The MEC expires when the total amount is used or on July 31, 2011, whichever is earlier. To redeem your MEC, sign in to your Expedia.com user account, and select a Qualifying Reservation. You must have on file or otherwise provide valid credit/debit card information at the time of booking in order to make a Qualifying Reservation on www.expedia.com using an MEC. As you proceed through the booking path you will be able to select your MEC and apply it to the cost of your trip. By applying the MEC, you agree to the MEC's applicable rules, including those described herein. You also agree to the Expedia, Inc. Web Site Terms, Conditions, and Notices, including all supplier rules. You must be signed in to the same Expedia.com user account into which the MEC was originally deposited in order to redeem the coupon. The MEC cannot be applied to guest registration bookings or to bookings made from other Expedia.com user accounts.

Qualifying Reservations made using an MEC have an advance purchase requirement of 3:00 p.m. Pacific Time on the day of planned arrival. In connection with certain packages that include airfare, the air supplier will charge your credit/debit card for the portion of the travel package charges applicable to the air component. When an MEC is applied to the purchase price of such a travel package, Expedia will apply the value of the MEC to the charges for the non-air package components. Any remaining value of the MEC will be applied to the portion of the travel package charges applicable to the air component as follows: The air supplier will charge the credit/debit card on file in your Expedia.com account or otherwise provided in connection with the booking, and Expedia will apply a credit to this credit/debit card to offset this charge in the amount of any remaining value of the MEC. Therefore, in some circumstances, the total charged to your credit/debit card could be more than the total shown when you book, until the MEC amount that applies to airfare is applied to your credit/debit card as a credit. If you use an MEC to make a reservation, any remainder of the MEC will be available for your use until the earlier of (1) the date that the MEC expires or (2) such time as the total amount of the MEC is used.

An MEC may not be combined with or applied to other coupons (including other MECs), promotions, or special offers. Itinerary changes or additions not allowed: ESR hotel and package purchases made using an MEC may not be changed. Any changes to a reservation made with a MEC will cause you to lose the value of your MEC, including, for example, adding a room night or an additional component, such as a rental car reservation. The MEC also cannot be applied to hotel reservations subsequently added to an existing air or other booking. If you cannot use your existing hotel or package reservation as you booked it and need to change your reservation but wish to retain the value of your MEC, you may cancel and rebook the reservation with the changes subject to the current pricing and availability through Expedia.com and subject to the restrictions on the availability of your MEC (including its expiration date) explained herein. Cancellations: If a reservation made using an MEC is cancelled after the expiration date of the MEC you will lose the MEC value used to book the reservation. If a reservation made using an MEC is cancelled prior to the expiration date of the MEC, the MEC value used to book the reservation will be refunded back to your Expedia.com user account into which the MEC was originally deposited. All cancellation fees or other penalties apply to MEC cancellations. Where a cancellation fee or penalty is more than the amount charged to your credit/debit card, your MEC may be reduced in the amount of the remaining cancellation fee or penalty, in Expedia's sole discretion. Otherwise, an MEC cannot be applied to the cost of cancellation or other penalties (including cancellation or other fees or penalties charged by our hotel, car, or air suppliers), administrative fees or other miscellaneous charges. Further, an MEC cannot be applied to any charges incurred after booking (including—without limitation—extra person charges, parking fees, phone, other charges to the room, and incidentals). These charges must be paid to the hotel or supplier directly, and they are the responsibility solely of the customer.

In the case of cancellations of certain www.expedia.com travel packages that include airfare and that are purchased using an MEC, the air supplier that charged your credit/debit card for the portion of the travel package charges applicable to the air component will, depending on the type of airfare that you purchased and the applicable terms and conditions and the time period within which you cancel, provide a refund to your credit/debit card or a credit for future air travel. Expedia will charge your credit/debit card in the amount of any credit that was previously applied to your credit/debit card to redeem the value of the MEC for the portion of the travel package charges applicable to the air component. As discussed above, your Expedia.com user account will also be credited with the value of the MEC that was used to make that purchase so long as the cancellation is made prior to the expiration date of the MEC and no other cancellation or other fees apply.

The MEC may not be used to book any product where the price is opaque or undisclosed. Bookings using the MEC may not be eligible for loyalty points for loyalty rewards programs available through Expedia.